I have also created a program that has the ability to use my internet connection during data transmission. The objective is to create a program that will automatically perform all the functions of a file sharing program. This project is not intended to be for beginners, and does not fit any of the categories mentioned in the below description.

However, if you have a question or a point you would like me to clarify I will respond. I have named the program 'File Sharing'. Description: The program allows you to connect to the internet via any type of connection (dial-up, LAN, cable, DSL or satellite) and you can either choose to connect to a specific site, or use the Auto-dial function. Once connected, the program will automatically use your internet connection for data transmission, and all you have to do is select the files and folders you want to share. You can set the size of the upload and download in MB or GB. You can define the name of the recipient, the time of the transfer, and more. All your sharing activities can be monitored and reviewed as you go. I'm sure there is plenty more features that I have overlooked in my haste to make it a fully functioning program. If you have any questions or points you would like me to clarify, please ask. Download Link: File Sharing. Visit now 77a5ca646e

----- NETSpeedBoost is a small Windows application whose purpose is to help you enhance your dial-up, LAN, cable, DSL or satellite connection. Runs on old operating systems This utility proves to be quite useful especially if you are the owner of an old operating system, such as Microsoft Windows 95, 98, ME, NT, 2000 and XP; otherwise you cannot run the tool without using the Windows Program Compatibility Troubleshooter. User interface NETSpeedBoost runs only in full screen so there's no way that you can resize its main window. You can only make use of a 'Minimize' button in case you want to get back to your desktop. Each time you press a dedicated parameter the tool plays a preset sound notification. On the downside, they are no settings included in the feature package for helping you turn off the preset sound.
